

May 2017 - Jesse S.

“For me, great service comes easy. I respect the value of the dollar. And what I mean by that is I work very hard for my money, so I am conscious of how I spend it. Therefore, when customers come in to BreWingZ, I know they too are spending their hard earned money. They deserve the best service I can give.” This mindset is only one of the many reasons Jesse is a valued part of the BreWingz Team. For Jesse, every little thing adds up. Every positive decision makes a difference. Everything from picking up a piece of trash off the floor, to saying a kind word - it all matters. “I make an effort to stay positive in each and every decision; things that most people look over. I not only think it helps makes the bigger picture come to light a little easier, but I think it brightens those around me as well. Positive energy can be contagious.”

So, what is in the bigger picture for Jesse? As he works for BreWingZ he is also a student at Houston Community College, hoping to transfer to Rice University to continue his study in Engineering. “I appreciate the mathematical aspect of Engineering, but what really draws me towards this field is the design and creation of something.” In addition to his journey of becoming an engineer, Jesse can’t seem to shake his love for food and the service industry, “I’d like to have my own food truck one day”. He thinks it would be a great way to meet people, change scenery, and offer delicious food, “I consider myself a social person, I love the interaction. And food is by far the best icebreaker, you know?”

Jesse has been with the BreWingZ team for almost 8 months. He can do just about anything from server, bartender, cook, prep, expo, you name it! He enjoys the environment, and hopes to become a trainer and help open future locations. As for now you can find him at the Wayside location, delivery great service in a unique Jesse style!
