

May 2018 - Albert Puig

Three years ago, Albert made the move from Mexico City to the Rosenberg area with his family. With a well-known, high-energy and eagerness to get things started in the new city, he applied to the soon-to-open Brewingz. Although he did not have professional restaurant experience, he always had an interest in the industry due to his mother's family owning a restaurant back in Mexico City. He was hired on as a dishwasher, but after just a few short weeks he knew he could offer more and requested to be moved to the kitchen, "I explained I didn't have experience, but that I was a fast learner and I was confident I'd do well." From there he moved quickly through the different stations of the kitchen, and he was right, he did it well. After only months, Albert was training to become a Kitchen Supervisor.

Albert has now been Kitchen Supervisor for over 2 years and works hard to not only to cook-up delicious food, but he puts a lot of focus on keeping the energy high and positive for his team, "Since we have opened I have worked really hard to keep a great atmosphere in the kitchen. I let them know I am here to help them, I let them know when I need help, it's not only about the food, it's about teamwork. When the kitchen is happy, it's good for everyone! In an industry where turnovers are high, I have managed to keep the same team and I am proud of that." Albert not only works hard to spread positivity at the Rosenberg location, he also has helped train and open Brewingz - CR59 and Brewingz - Mason/290, "I enjoy teaching. I like showing employees not only what I've learned, but how I apply it day to day. I also enjoy the rush of business when we first open."

When he is not at Brewingz, he likes to go to the gym. Albert starts every day with out work out, he believes it keeps him physically and mentally fit, and helps release a lot of the high-energy he maintains. Professionally he has goals of becoming a GM for Brewingz, but outside of Brewingz his main goal is to dedicate more time to his family, "I work hard at everything I do in life, which usually means I work a lot. But family is always first, and as I grow professionally I also want to be sure to keep them a priority."

The Brewingz Team is happy to have you as part of our family Albert!
